Can battery energy storage systems generate revenue through grid services?

Many of our customers are using battery energy storage systems to generate revenue through providing grid services. Many of our customers use battery energy storage systems to generate revenue through grid services. But how easy is it and what does it all mean? Frazer Wagg, Head of Data Services at Connected Energy, explains...

Can a battery energy storage system help balance the grid?

"A battery energy storage system (BESS) can be used to help balance the grid, by storing and discharging energy when it's needed, improving our energy resilience.

How much do batteries earn from wholesale trading?

Over the lifetime of a battery built today, we forecast wholesale trading to represent 67% of total revenues. Batteries profit from the spread between their charge and discharge prices. Price spreads, measured as the difference between the maximum and minimum price each day, largely determine the value batteries can earn from trading.

How does National Grid buy energy?

National Grid buys energy in large blocks, typically by the megawatt (MW). If your BESS provides less than 1MW, it can't individually supply the grid. An aggregator is a way for several smaller assets in the same area to group together to sell grid balancing solutions.

When is a battery energy storage system charged?

Basically, the battery energy storage system is charged when prices on wholesale energy markets, e.g. the spot market of the energy exchange, are low. Subsequently, the battery energy storage system is discharged when prices on wholesale markets are high and power is sold back to the grid.

What is the biggest revenue stream for battery energy storage?

Trading power on the wholesale market has become the largest revenue stream for battery energy storage. Over the lifetime of a battery built today, we forecast wholesale trading to represent 67% of total revenues. Batteries profit from the spread between their charge and discharge prices.
