Electronic health records (EHRs) are stored in various database systems with different database models on heterogeneous storage architectures, such as relational databases, document stores, or graph databases. These different database models have a big impact on query complexity and performance. While this has been a known fact in database research, its ...

To use the model in Cadence Virtuoso, create a cell called fecap view with a symbol. Then, in the Virtuoso main window, open Tools/CDF/Edit and load fecap.cdf.Now import the model card in your Maestro test bench via Setup/Model Libraries, for example fehlings2024.scs for the model card of the source citation.. Alternatively create a veriloga view and paste in the source code, ...
